

CWSF 2012 - Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island

Biography

When I'm not going to science fairs, as I have for the past 12(!) years, you'll find me volunteering at a local theatre, helping with CWSF 2013, fixing medical equipment, taking photos, or maybe even studying for those mad crazy hard diploma exams Alberta has.

Abstract:	Keyboards have long been the default means of text entry for computer use, but they are not universally applicable: People with physical disabilities that impede regular typing are currently at a major disadvantage when using computers, widening the already-large societal gap that separates them from the able-bodied majority. Creating a superior solution presents challenges in both predictive text and user interface design.
