Abstract: Diabetics rely on blood glucose monitors to maintain a healthy lifestyle. In this project, multiple tests were compared. After numerous trials, the conclusion was made that the monitors are not as accurate as people expect and need them to be.

Biography

I'm a grade 8 student and I'm dedicated to academics. I have received the Citizenship of the Year award in 2012 for my participation in my community, and have had the chance to participate in the regional spelling bee. After I graduate, I would like to become a Mathematical Physicist or a Computer Scientist. I am dedicated to every thing I do and once I set my mind to something, I finish it whether it takes me a day or a year. I enjoy volunteering in the community, helping young kids find values and build character, and I love camping. I got my inspiration for this project from my mom who is a 28 year diabetic. I would really like to enhance my project, using a wider range of machines, subjects, and companies. If I were to give advice to students who are interested in doing a project, I would tell them to come up with an idea, and just do it because you never know where it will get you.
