

CWSF 2013 - Lethbridge, Alberta

Charanpreet Mahal, Gurmeen Banipal

Sensing the Way

Challenge: Innovation

Category: Intermediate

Region: Fraser Valley

City: Abbotsford, BC

School: Dasmesh Punjabi School

Abstract: Blindness is a growing global issue. Although, the visually impaired rely on many techniques such as guide dogs and white canes to get through their day, these techniques are not the best aid; they only provide limited tactile information. In this project, we've built a navigation device that will give the blind freedom to move around independently, and reduce the risk of injuries.

Biographies

Charanpreet - My name is Charanpreet Mahal. I'm currently a Gr.10 student at Dasmesh Punjabi School, Abbotsford, B.C. I'm a girl with an exuberant attitude and good work ethics. I love experiencing new things, new foods, and new places. Curiosity has always dominated my mind, I guess this why science attracts me so much. Other than science some of my interests include reading, baking, music, swimming and travelling. Besides this I'm also an active member of both the school and the community. I strongly believe in the saying: "You must be the change you want to see" and this why I love taking initiative to do things for others. My passion for the study of s...

Gurmeen - My name is Gurmeen Kaur Banipal. I am a Grade 10 student at Dasmesh Punjabi School in Abbotsford, BC. Science has always been my passion; even when I operated on remote controls and performed surgeries on toasters as a child. The saying, "Always aim for the Moon, even if you miss, you'll land among the stars", strongly influences my life- I am hardworking girl, with an enthusiastic personality. Other than science, I enjoy reading, traveling to new places, listening to music, and playing sports. I play volleyball, soccer, and also take pleasure in swimming. I am trained to play the Harmonium and Tabla, two Indian classical instruments. My ...

Awards

Value

Excellence Award - Intermediate - Bronze Medal Sponsor: Youth Science Canada	$100
Western University Scholarship Bronze Medallist - $1000 Entrance Scholarship Sponsor: Western University	$1 000
Total	$1 100