Abstract: The goal of this study was about nonverbal communication (NVC). I wanted to know how effective my communication would be with others if I use different types of nonverbal communication. I wanted to create a deeper awareness of NVC cues for others so that people will be able to have more meaningful relationships with each other.

Biography

Hi! My name is Jasmine and I like milk chocolate. I'm student chief at my school and I volunteer for work at a small convenience store after school hours. I have interests in science and the arts, and I want to try and pursue both. My science project was started by my own curiosity, and I'm curious to see more data get done regionally, rather than just in my community. Projects shouldn't be limited to what we normally see, students can pursue answers to their questions, as long as it doesn't do harm to anyone at all.
